The Foundation Course

This course provides an introduction to the theory and principles of Personal Construct Psychology (PCP), allowing participants to develop a practical understanding of the theory which will then guide their work. The theoretical base of PCP is broad and robust, which makes this an approach with wide applicability in clinical and educational settings, but also in supervision, coaching, staff management, staff development, and organisational change.

Following completion of the Foundation Course there are opportunities to attend further workshops and supervision in order to help you to begin to apply the theory in your own setting should you wish. Personal Construct Psychotherapy, which has developed from PCP, is a flexible approach to therapy which is well suited to consultation and short term work, as well as to more intensive clinical work. It is suitable for all client groups, ages, and ranges of ability. In this age of the quick fix, Personal Construct Psychotherapy is often useful when other therapies have failed to produce sustained improvement.

Facilitators

The course is taught by tutors who are all HCPC or UKCP registered and have many years of experience in PCP. Between them, they have a range of publications about their therapeutic work using PCP. The tutors are Diane Allen, Peter Cummins, Heather Moran, Sally Robbins and Grant Weselby.

Course sessions

A version of the course was successfully delivered on Zoom last year and the course materials and sessions have all been revised and updated for this year. There will be an emphasis on practical exercises which help participants to engage well with the materials presented.

As the course is delivered in a seminar format, participants are expected to spend an additional 2 hours per week to prepare for sessions by reading the newly-revised Foundation Guide and completing relevant exercises. The new version of the book will be available by September and a link will be emailed to you so you can order direct from Amazon. This will cost an additional £6.99. A maximum of 16 places are available to allow for a more personalised teaching and learning experience.

To book a place, email Sally Robbins: sally@covpcp.com

When your place is confirmed, you will need to pay the fee to secure your place, and to provide details of your name, professional role, personal email address & mobile number (for emergency contact in case of a problem before or during the course). Places are allocated on a first come, first served basis. In the event that there are insufficient numbers to proceed with the course, all monies will be refunded. Please note that the fee cannot be refunded for failure to attend once a place is reserved.
